ESDAL: What is it?

It's a free website that makes it easy and quick to notify an abnormal load movement. Managed by the Highways Agency, and paid for by the Treasury, there is no charge for you to use ESDAL.

How will ESDAL work?

Log in, sketch your route on the multi-scale maps, and enter your vehicle configuration. The system will automatically identify who needs to be notified, and, during later phases, will send the notifications for you.

Why ESDAL?

The new system will save you time and reduce the number of misdirected and incorrect notifications. You can be sure that each notification you send will conform with regulations and provide all the information that structure owners and Police need.

How will ESDAL affect me?

You'll get a common link to Police, structure owners, local highway authorities and the Highways Agency. You'll be able to identify and save routes you use often; and store information about your vehicles. You won't need any special software; just an internet connection and web browser.

When can I use ESDAL?

ESDAL will launch in 4 phases. The first phase launches in Spring 2005, and will provide accurate and constantly updated contact details for the people you need to notify. Further details of what each phase will deliver can be found on our website: www.highways.gov.uk/ESDAL

How secure is ESDAL?

We know you don't want information about your vehicles and routes to be seen by your competitors. Access to ESDAL is password protected, and only you will be able to see your information. Only the information required for a notification will be passed on, and only to the people you need to notify.
