

Questions to think about as you read

Did you like the look of the book when you first saw it?

How much of the book did you read first of all – what made you stop?

What made you pick up the book again?

Which part of the book was hardest to read?

What did you most enjoy about the book – characters, setting, style of writing etc?

What irritated you about the book if anything?

At which point did you really get into the book or when did you decide to give up on it?

Did the content of the book match up to your expectations from looking at the cover?

Would you encourage anyone else to read the book? Who would be the ideal target audience?
