

What type of reader are you?

Where do you read?	Comfy sofa in the lounge, bath (not library books, I hope), bed, garden, train
Where is your fantasy place to read?	Sun drenched beach , in front of a log fire
When do you read?	Snatched moments, fill in time, winter, summer, while the telly's on, waiting for the kettle to boil
How do you read?	Skim over the boring bits, miss out chunks, read everything thoroughly all the time, when do you decide to stop reading?
Do you ever cheat?	Would you ever read the end first? In what circumstances?
Are you a single or multiple reader?	Do you have more than one book on the go? Are they all the same?
Do you re-read?	What books have you re-read and why? Would you have a second go at a difficult book?

What type of reader are you?

Is there a book you cannot get around to reading but always meant to?	Why can't you start that book? Are there books you think you ought to read?
Is there a book that evokes the time and place you read it?	A memorable journey, a horrendous holiday. Have books marked stages in your life - a relationship, splitting up, kids leaving home, promotion at work?
Can you pick a book you remember from childhood?	Why is this particular book memorable?
