Domestic Violence Disclosure Scheme (DVDS)	The DVDS (also known as Clare's Law) enables the police to disclose information to a person at risk of domestic abuse about their current or new partner's previous abusive or violent offending. It has two elements: 'Right to Ask' and 'Right to Know'. 'Right to Ask' allows for a member of the public the right to ask the police if their partner may pose a risk to them (a third party such as a friend, family member or professional can also ask). If records show a risk, the police will consider disclosing this information. 'Right to Know' enables police to pro-actively make a disclosure if they receive information about the violent or abusive behaviour of a person that may impact on someone's safety.	All genders	www.thamesvalley.police.uk/advice/advice-and-information/daa/domestic-abuse/alpha2/request-information-under-clares-law/
